

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The Legislature is now busy staying in session too long.

American soldiers must be sent abroad as soon as possible in the opinion of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood.

The man who goes a-fishing now can claim that he is adding to the country's food supply.

The gardening season is on. Even Chief of Police Roper comes down on mornings wet all over with sweat.

If you have any trouble getting enough to eat, see Emmett Cooper. He is the Hopkinsville member of the Food Commission.

A section of the bleachers fell at a Columbus, Ohio, ball game and 42 men were injured, 16 requiring hospital treatment.

The British made an air attack on Freiberg, Germany, Monday night, in reprisal for German attacks on British hospital ships, and a Berlin report says 11 persons were killed and 29 wounded.

Company D is called to the Colors again, this time, with every prospect of seeing active service, perhaps in Europe. Wherever the gallant boys are called to fight, they may be counted upon to render a good account of themselves.

The Administration's $7,000,000,000 Revenue Bill was passed unanimously Tuesday night by the Senate. Changes made since it passed the House necessitate conferences between the two houses before it can go to the President for his signature. Even LaFollete and Stone have decided to be Americans.

The closing sitting of the Russian Congress of the Council of workmen's and Soldiers' delegates passed resolutions favoring the suppression of classes and titles and the confiscation of all lands belonging to the Crown, the Church and also monasteries. Provision is made for the transfer of the lands to the use of the peasants.

IMPERTINENT QUESTIONS

Asked By Two Suspicious Looking Characters Yesterday.

Yesterday morning two strangers went to the Axe-Handle factory on the T. C. Belt Line and asked Supt. B. J. Crain a number of impertinent questions, among others where he got his water supply and where the reservoir was located. They also wanted to know what kind of a plant the Mogul Wagon Factory near by was, Mr. Crain finally told them he didn't care to be interrogated by them. Later he notified the police. The men were on foot and spoke with a foreign brogue. Chief of Police Roper requests citizens who have similar experiences in the future to phone him at once and if possible detain the parties until an officer can arrive.

OLD GLORY UNFURLED

New Flag at Elks Home To Be Raised This Afternoon

BY TWO OLD VETERANS.

Banner Is 20 Feet Long And Staff 32 Feet Above Building.

At 5 o'clock this afternoon, at the Elks Home, on Ninth street, the beautiful new American flag 10x20 feet will be raised with elaborate ceremonies on a 32-foot pole.

The exercises will open with the usual ritualistic ceremonies given by the officers of the lodge. Then the Rev. Geo. C. Abbott will offer a prayer. Mr. O. C. Wright will sing the "Star Spangled Banner," after which the Hon. R. A. Cook will deliver an address suitable to the occasion. At the conclusion of the address Mr. C. F. Jarrett and Mr. E. D. Jones, both Confederate veterans, and two of the oldest members of the local lodge, will run the flag to the top of the staff. It will then be loosed to the breezes with the regular military salute. As the flag is unfurled, the audience will stand and sing "America."

Everybody is not only invited but urged to be present and by your presence help to show your love for your county and its flag. Remember the time and place 5 o'clock this afternoon at the Elk's Home on Ninth street.

OUR FLAG.

"RESOLVED, That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." These words brought the flag into official being—a resolution of congress, adopted in Philadelphia on June 14, 1777. Yet a whole year earlier there had been a flag, the one sewed by the devoted fingers of Betsey Ross, the young Philadelphia woman who made it at the suggestion of a committee from congress, accompanied by General Washington, from whose coat of arms the design was borrowed.

The flag went into battle for the first time at Brandywine, September 11, 1777, and on February 14, 1778, received the first salute from a foreign power, when the Ranger, commanded by John Paul Jones, was saluted by the French in Quiberon bay, a port of France. At length came Vermont and Kentucky into the Union, and two more stripes and two more stars were added to our banner on May 1, 1795. So it continued for twenty-three years, by which time five more states had entered the galaxy of commonwealths. And then on April 4, 1818, the flag was fixed at thirteen stripes again, but with twenty stars, one to be added on July 4 for each new state thereafter. And Illinois, admitted in December of the same year, was the first to set a new star in the blue field where today are forty-eight.

French Offensives On Eighteen Mile Front Near Rheims Net 13,500 Prisoners

Terrific Attack Monday Captures First Lines And Followed Up Tuesday--Entire German Line In Danger.

BRITISH MAKE FURTHER ADVANCES.

Paris, April 18.—Continuing their terrific attack against the German positions, between Soissons and Rheims and east of the latter place Tuesday, the French carried German first line positions over many miles of front, capturing powerfully organized heights, occupied the important village of Auberville on this part of the front, about two miles in extent, and took more than 2,500 prisoners.

According to the official statement from the war office, strong German counter attacks were repulsed. The number of German prisoners taken by the French Monday is now placed at 11,000.

The attack of the French was irresistible, despite snow and rain. South of Moronvilliers, first line German line positions over a front of 9½ miles were taken, and to the east and southeast a strongly organized line of heights on a front of nearly 8 miles was captured. The village of Auberville likewise fell into the hands of the French, as also did a powerfully fortified salient around the village of about two miles in extent.

The latest official communication from Berlin says the French efforts to break through the German lines on the Aisne failed and that there had been no renewal of the attack. A previous communication described the battle as one of the greatest in the history of the war. It admitted that under the terrific bombardment between the Oise and Conde-sur-Aisne the French shells "levelled the positions (German) and produced wide, deep craters, rendering an obstinate defense no longer possible."

Besides the French suffering sanguinary losses, more than 2,100 prisoners were taken by the Germans, the communication said.

West and northwest of Lens, the British are still pressing the Germans hard and holding back attempts by the Germans to drive in their advance guards. Further progress has been made by the British in the neighborhood of the Havrincourt wood, which lies midway between Arras and St. Quentin.

No important changes in positions have taken place in any of the other theaters except in Mesopotamia where the British, operating on the right bank of the Tigris, have reached a point 75 miles northwest of Bagdad and are keeping up their advance against the Tuaks, who are falling back without offering resistance. The British are now within ten miles of Samara on the Bagdad-Samara railway.

ROCKEFELLER'S BROTHER DEAD

Hated John D. and Disliked to Be Called His Brother.

Cleveland, Ohio, Apr. 18.—Frank Rockefeller, aged 72, youngest brother of John D. Rockefeller, died Sunday in his apartments in a local hotel from a stroke of paralysis and a blood clot on the brain as a result of a relapse he suffered following an intestinal operation a month ago. He became seriously ill last Monday and was unconscious since Friday. He is survived by a widow and three daughters. The funeral was held Tuesday.

Frank Rockefeller was not on speaking terms with his brother, John D., as a result of a quarrel they had years ago.

REUNION TO BE HELD

President Sees No Reason For Postponement Of Veterans' Meeting.

Washington, April 18.—President Wilson, in answering a letter recently received, said that he saw no reason why the Confederate veterans' reunion set for Washington during the week beginning June 4, should be postponed on account of the international situation. Some person whose name was not given out at the White House wrote the President asking if he thought the reunion should be cancelled or postponed.

Married Through Window.

Ilion, N.Y., April 18.—Silveria Hopkinson was married today to Charles Monroe through the window of a house. The window opened through his room. He is in bed with scarlet fever.

Quarantine officers watched to see that the law was strictly observed. The Rev. J. F. Wilds, of Herkimer, substituted for the bridegroom in placing the ring on the bride's finger and also gave him the kiss at the close of the ceremony.

The minister had to shout part of the service while the bridegroom gave acquiescence by the sign language.

MILITARY EVOLUTIONS

Instructions Given Every Evening to Old and Young Who Want to Learn.

Every night at 7 o'clock at the W. O. W. Hall the ghosts of the old Hopkinsville military companies peep out from the corners and listen with attentive ears as the present generation pace to and fro before the strict drill masters. It is a queer sight that this company of eager learners present. There is no age limit and little boys in short trousers stand straight and erect by the side of white haired men and strive to learn the fundamentals of military training, so that if the need comes they can do their "bit" in defense of their country and it's flag.

Nothing is charged. Nothing has to be joined. You come and go when you feel like it. You only drill and learn and when you are tired out, make room for someone else. Everybody is invited, so come out and prepare yourself to do your share when you are called upon. Men skilled in military evolutions are there to teach you, so everybody come.

EGG CIRCLE

Tuesday the Largest Shipment of the Season Was Made, a Total of 300 Dozen.

The Christian County Egg Circle made its fifth shipment Tuesday and everything points to a great year for the ladies of the Circle. The first two shipments were 210 dozen, which gradually increased until this week 300 dozen were shipped or a total of about 1300 dozen eggs shipped in five weeks. The ladies are highly pleased with the showing made thus far and are striving to do better as the season advances.

McCabe-Foley.

The marriage banns of Miss Foley and Mr. Thomas McCabe were read at the Church of the Immaculate Conception Sunday morning by Father Nolan. The news comes as a pleasant surprise to Mr. McCabe's friends here, the bride-to-be being a Hopkinsville lady. The marriage will take place in the near future.—Clarksville Leaf-Chronicle.

TWO BILLION BY TAXATION

Increase of Income Tax One of Important Means--To Lower Tax Exemptions.

Washington, April 16.—Administration suggestions as to possible new sources of taxation through which to raise approximately one-half of the estimated cost of the first year of the war, or $1,807,250,000, were submitted by Sec. McAdoo to the senate finance and the house ways and means committees. The other half of the cost is to be provided by $2,000,000,000 of the bonds authorized by the war revenue bill passed Saturday by the house, which is expected to pass the senate this week.

Outstanding in the suggestions are greatly increased income and excess profit tax rates, taxing of many imported articles now admitted free and stamp, liquor, amusement, sugar, coffee, tobacco, soft drink, freight and passenger transportation and automobile taxes. All of the data is sent to congress for its information and without recommendations from the treasury.

Probably the most far-reaching proposal concerns income taxes. The secretary estimates that a 50 per cent. increase on both individuals and corporations for 1917, collectible next June, would yield $165,000,000 additional. For 1917 he points out that to lower tax exemption from $3,000 to $1,500 for unmarried persons from $4,000 to $2,000 for married persons, would leave the normal tax at the present percent, but to raise the super taxes materially would make the law produce $340,000,000 additional in June, 1918, without changing the corporation tax. The highest rate on super taxes under the plan outlined would be 40 per cent of all incomes over $1,000,000.

Consideration of the suggestions will begin immediately in the ways and means committee. A bill probably will be reported by it within two weeks.

2000 GARDENS.

Students of the Lexington city schools have entered into the home school garden movement with alacrity and enthusiasm, and approximately 2,000 gardens will be planted and cultivated by the school children this year.

TO MOBILIZE AT LEXINGTON

Company D Waiting Moving Orders For Camp of Two Regiments.

SEVENTEEN NEW RECRUITS

Have Donned United States Uniform to Fight For Uncle Sam.

Orders from Headquarters of the Department of the East, Governor's Island, received yesterday, direct at Lexington the mobilization of the Second and Third Kentucky regiments immediately.

Company D was busy yesterday making preparations to move on a moment's notice. All of the companies of the two regiments are expected to be on hand in a day or two.

No fresh obligations will have to be taken by the men. They have been federal guards since what is termed "original muster," and were automatically taken over by the government with the President's call April 13. The "initial" muster simply means enrollment. He said that he thought this work could be completed with dispatch, and that then the matter of taking in the men now at stations over the State would be taken up.

The company is commanded by Capt. Henry J. Stites and the Lieutenants are Alvan H. Clark and Cecil Armstrong. Lieut. Clark has been in the South on his wedding trip since April 10, but is expected to report for duty in a few days. Lieut. L. R. Flack, who has been at Eddyville for some time, is here to leave with the company. He is in the regimental department.

About 17 new men are ready to go with the company.

ACCEPTED RECRUITS.

Company D has enlisted the following new soldiers: Herbert Bowling, Willie D. Eohannan, William H. Boyd, William H. Crawley, Thomas P. Datto, Henry S. Haynes, Norris W. Hawkins, Richard Hogan, Oscar D. Jenkins, Selewin Kilgore, Robert A. Latham, Wyley S. Mayton, Remo L. Mason, Sidney M. Pritchett, Frank Scott, Oscar Paul Stadlerman, Russell A. Blair.

TORPEDO GOES WIDE OF SHIP

U. S. Destroyer Reports German Submarine Tried to Sink Her.

RUNNING UNDER WATER

Wake of Torpedo Seen Thirty Yards Off the Bow of the Destroyer.

Boston, Mass., April 18.—The war was brought to the shores of this country Tuesday when the United States destroyer Smith reported by radio that an enemy submarine had tried unsuccessfully to torpedo her 100 miles south of New York at 3:30 o'clock that morning. Additional reports were received from the destroyer and were forwarded to Washington.

Nothing of an official nature regarding the additional reports was made public here.

A suggestion in shipping circles that the lookout on the Smith had perhaps mistaken a large fish for the torpedo in the uncertain light of the early morning, met with the reply that the Smith's officers "stood by their original statement."

Burning Gas in Teakettles.

Spanish peasants living in the cork-

by one authority, the process con-

in turn over the fire during the evening, burning the volatile gas as it escapes from the spouts. The carbonic residue forms the fine black-brown pig-brown."

four years ago the dizzy spells got so bad that when I would start to walk
I would just pretty near fall. I wasn't past doing my work, but was very much run-down.

I told my husband I thought Cardui would help me, as a lady who lived next door to me had taken a great deal, and told me to try it. This was when we were living in Kentucky.

My husband got me a bottle and I took it according to directions. It helped me so much that he went back and got me another bottle. I got a whole lot better and just quit taking it. I got over the dizzy spells. I took no other medicine at that time nor since for this trouble. No, I've never regretted taking Cardui.

I felt just fine when I finished the second bottle."

HERE IS A CONTENTED CITY

Impression Gained by Visitors to Adelaide, Australia, Where Activities Are Peculiarly Organized.

Adelaide's unusual plan—a business section surrounded by a zone of 2,000 acres of park lands, beyond which are the residential sections—seems designed to put business cares, recreation, and quiet home life in separate compartments. The organization of city life to allow for leisure—a feeling more prevalent in Adelaide than in Melbourne, or even in Sydney, and almost unknown in American cities—is partly responsible for the universal impression among visitors that Adelaide ranks high in general culture.

Both climate and the high quality of the South Australian pioneers are also factors which have helped to make Adelaide such a desirable place of residence. Those who are attracted by the climate, people, and manner of life of the foothill cities of Southern California, who care for out-of-door life and flowers and fruit, and wish to spend week ends in near-by mountains or at the seashore, would feel at home in Adelaide.

Most writers on Australia profess to see differences in types and manners in the three leading cities of the commonwealth, and the natives feel sure that differences exist. Melbourne is "hustling;" Sydney is "easy going;"
Adelaide is "solid" and "contented."
On the basis of short acquaintance these characterizations seem as unreal as "dead" Philadelphia or "provincial"
Boston would to an Australian traveler. In the American sense, no Australian city is hustling; all are doing much business in an orderly, efficient manner. As places for residence they have few competitors among the cities of the United States.—National Geographic Magazine.

War Has Caused Changes.

A tradition of Oxford and Cambridge has been completely broken. For the first time since the days of Charles the First a whole generation of undergraduate life has dropped out. Men now at the front, who ordinarily would enter the learned professions, will not be willing to return to go through the normal undergraduate course. It will take too big a slice out of life, and the demand for men will be far too urgent, and the tasks to be done so great. It will be up to the universities to give to these practical young men who come back the essence of a liberal education, and to do it in the only way that they would, generally speaking, be ready to submit to, namely, in some shortened way, and in a way that obviously bore directly upon life.—London Times.

The Informing Movies.

"Are there any educational films at the picture theaters today?" asked the studious-looking person.

"Depends on how you want to be educated," replied the movie fan. "We have films on exhibition at the local photoplay house showing how blackmailers take advantage of the Mann act, the way 'vampires' break up happy homes, the corrupting influence of cabarets and the reasons why police captains in large cities are able to retire after a few years of service with large fortunes."

As the Poet Says.

"Co-operation is the secret of a successful household," remarked the sociologist.

"That's what I used to think," answered Mr. Glithers, "but it has been so long since Mrs. Glithers would tolerate my interference in household affairs, I have about concluded that 'they also serve who only stand and wait.'"

WORLD OWES MUCH TO WATT

Scotman the First to Realize and Make Practical the Wonderful Power of Steam.

"Science took a tear from the cheek of unpaid labor, converted it into steam and created a giant which turns with tireless arms the countless wheels of toll."

Thus Ingersoll's poetic explanation of the origin of the transformation of pent-up steam into controlled and industrially valuable mechanical action. Elaborated in a more prosaic manner, James Watt, a young Scotchman of Glasgow, and an instrument maker by trade, once had an idea. It was a most revolutionary idea. Men had been working on steam engines for many centuries, but they had produced nothing of any practical value. In the engines of that period steam was admitted into only one end of the cylinder, and about the only use such an engine had was to pump water. And it wasn't very good at that. As for using an engine to turn a wheel—why, nobody had thought of that. It simply wasn't being done. But James did it. He let steam into both ends of the cylinder instead of only one, put a fly-wheel on the end of a shaft and a crank on the other, and there was the steam engine, all ready for its real business.

Watt was born in Greenock, Scotland, on January 19, 1736, his father being a builder, contractor and merchant.

WOMEN NOT MOST GARRULOUS

Writer Calls Attention to Truth Which Is an Indictment of the Sterner Sex.

We men are accustomed to deride the garrulity of women; yet I doubt if any woman under the sun could compete in loquacity with a pair or trio or quartet of young men engaged in the exchange of views on metaphysics, literature or art. We two or three or four spent ambrosial nights, Robert M. Gray writes in the Atlantic. There were no problems too knotty, no reaches of hypothesis too vast for us to attempt.

That was a time of life to remember, when the mind was growing like corn in hot weather. It is a pleasant thought that all over the land there are little bands of youths doing as we did. I get wind of one now and then—some boy with all the fire and foolishness, some girl with all the sensibility and sentimentalities, by a chance look or word carries me back, as a whiff of lilacs or mignonette can transport us into our childhood.

He is a poor man who never was foolish. It is appalling to think over what he has missed. I am glad that there was a time when I was omniscient; that there was a time when an opinion was attractive because it was radical, and the "miserable little virtue of prudence" was not a part of my moral code. I think it makes me more charitable toward youth. Whether it does or not, there can be no doubt that the surest corrective and sweetener of life is a vivid memory.

THE KENTUCKIAN FOR 1917

EVER since the year 1868, the HOPKINSVILLE KENTUCKIAN has been published under one name or another. In 1879 the present name was given and the present management took charge of the paper, which is now in its 39th volume. For almost 40 years it has been a faithful exponent of the growth and development of the city and county. It has written in its files a history of the county covering that long period. It has recorded the birth of three generations in some instances. It has seen the small town develop into a prosperous city with its people ever looking forward to greater things.

During all these years it has had a loyal and constant patronage from the best people of the county. It has many subscribers whose names have not been off its subscription lists in 39 years. In many other families sons have taken their father's places. We would be ungrateful not to appreciate support like this, but we have never come to the reading public with a stronger appeal for patronage than this year. Conditions have greatly changed and paper stock is three times as high as a year ago.

Many newspapers have advanced rates but in order that the circulation may not be lessened by a higher price the KENTUCKIAN will still be sent for $2.00 a year, the old price. It will be necessary though to adhere rigidly to the cash system, since more than $1.00 must be paid in advance for the paper upon which we print 156 papers and the cost of printing leaves but little profit out of the second dollar. We are asking our old subscribers to stand by us in this crisis by renewing promptly.

All papers not paid for will be Stopped.
Don't Let Yours Stop.

The Price Will be the same $2.00 a Year
as heretofore,

TOO MANY NEGROES

Says Chicago Tribune and Howls For Segregation Into Sections.

Segregation of the negro population of Chicago into restricted sections by legislative action has been proposed and will be pushed by the Chicago Real Estate Board. At a meeting of realty dealers yesterday a committee was appointed to frame such a bill for the Legislature and an ordinance for the City Council.

"That the contemplated step will meet with violent opposition of the negroes as a whole and of others, too, will be expected, according to the many men who voiced their opinions in yesterday's meeting."

The occasion for the movement is the migratory flood of Southern negro laborers, who are pouring into Chicago at the average rate of 10,000 a month.

This influx, according to L. M. Smith, J. O. Ackley and others prominent in the board, will do more than $250,000,000 damage to Chicago property.

By various artifices the negro real estate dealers are charged with "ruining" white residential districts by obtaining leaseholds on one building in every block and then renting the property to negro tenants. This action, the real estate men say, causes an immediate depreciation in adjoining property values and one by one the white tenants move out.

"There is alleged to be an understanding between these real estate men to obtain the whole city between Cottage Grove and State street, and Twenty-second and Sixty-third streets for negroes. This would affect 300,000 persons. The manner in which they are effecting the 'change of complexion' in this district is accomplished by various schemes, it is charged."

—Chicago Tribune.

Love Must Find Another Way.
Hurry into the ordinary office, a young man who gave his name as Sam Brown, said to the clerk:

"Lend me a marriage certificate, will you?"

"What's the idea?" quizzed the clerk.

"Well, you see, it's this way: The girl I want to marry is under age, and I'd have to get her parents' consent—they won't give it, so I've got to have a certificate before I can carry out my plan."

"What's your plan?"

"Well, if you won't tell anybody, I'll get you in on it. If I carry a marriage certificate it will fool the girl's father and mother, they'll relent, like all fathers and mothers do when they think the marriage has been performed. They will give their consent, then we can really get married."

"Nothing doing," said the clerk.

"Sorry, but—"

Brown departed, sadly. —Atlanta Constitution.

Switchboard Girl Suffered.

Representative Blank's wife was holding a reception. The receiving line was made up of prominent women, with a guest list to match, and the affair was going off beautifully when—

The telephone jangled out a clamorous ring that kept on ringing and ringing. Naturally, an interruption like that calls for instant and alert attention. But the telephone didn't mind. It just kept on ringing and—And while the receiving line was registering their consternation somebody caught on: The angel child of the house was sitting on the rug by the telephone desk, banging the receiver on the floor. That's all, only—consider the wear and tear on the emotions of the girl at the switchboard.

Why Watches Lose Time.

The reason for variations in the time-keeping qualities of a well-regulated watch have been the subject of investigation by scientists recently. The popular theories that animal magnetism and bodily temperature are causes are denied by the investigators. Weather, different rhythms of movement as well as the angle at which a watch hangs, are given as real cause for irregularities. —Auburn Advertiser-Journal.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than in all other diseases put together, and until the last few years it was considered incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. It acts directly on the blood and cures one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Popular Mechanics Magazine For May.

Always a leader in its field, Popular Mechanics Magazine in its May number offers page after page of unusual features, both in picture and story. Scores of ingenious devices and inventions are described and various scientific achievements recorded.

America's impending struggle with Germany calls forth an inspiring editorial by H. H. Windson. He says: "It is not a war of our choosing—not a war to enlarge our territory—but a war in defense of honor, justice, and the rights of humanity. Because as a nation we have not been given to a pyrotechnic display of patriotism some have blindly thought we had none. The spirit of Paul Revere is again abroad in the land and the response from every city, county and farm is uniting in a stupendous potentiality. We undertake this mission with sadness but with that intensity of purpose that has made America what it is, in the hope that permanent peace for all the world may be our reward."

Several pages of illustrations depict various phases of America's military preparations. A number of devices and inventions described are of timely interest. Among these are an aeroplane microphone, useful for detecting the approach of enemy aircraft; a "gun type" scout camera for airmen; a periscope rifle for trench fighting; an adaptable pedestal for machine guns, etc.

Interesting developments in aeroplane design and construction are described by Seafie Hendee in an illuminative article.

How France is already planning for complete restoration of her war-ruined cities, villages and farms is told by Lewis R. Freeman.

An article of extraordinary interest is "New Ray Destroys Zeppelins," by Frank O'Callaghan. The article tells of the remarkable discovery by a young Irishman of a new ray which, it is claimed, was used successfully to destroy Zeppelins in air raids over London.

Origin of the Curfew.

A note by Ruskin Butterfield reminds us that, although Shakespeare speaks of "the curfew bell" and Milton of "the far-off curfew sound," Chaucer more correctly refers to "curfew tyme," as curfew was originally an appliance for covering the fire. There are examples still in existence, for instance, in the Hastings (Eng.) museum; they look like large tea-cosies in metal. They served, as modern use fireguards, to prevent sparks setting the house on fire, and the housewife heaped the embers together at night and placed the curfew over them to lessen the combustion, and in the morning save the trouble of lighting the fire again.

"THE JUDGE'S CATCH"

By OLIVER GRAY.

The judge was fishing. He was a good fisherman, not because he caught so many of the finny tribe, but because he could sit hour in and hour out, day in and day out, week in and week out, without getting a single strike—and without losing his patience.

His thoughts were drifting like the white clouds in the blue sky reflected in the water. "Any fellow is a fool who goes to a summer resort. It's nice to be free! If a fellow was married he'd have to go where the family wanted. Look at poor Willis, dragged away like a lamb to the slaughter. He didn't want to go to the mountains any more than I want to go to the bad place. That's what he gets for getting married." Suddenly he felt a pull on his line. He reeled in slowly, very slowly. "It's a big bass, I'll bet," he exulted. But to his surprise he hauled in not a bass but a pocketbook. It was a long, flat purse of patent leather with flat plates of silver at each end and a silver clasp. He turned it over thoughtfully. Wet and soggy as it was, it had not lost its identity and it was coming to him slowly that he had seen that same purse before.

"Of course," he argued, "her name and address are inside and it's ridiculous for me to waste time guessing. But there's something about that purse that brings back—I have it. It was the case of the Crockett heirs and the whole family connection was in court. She wore dark blue and had sort of copper-colored hair and deep blue eyes and she dropped this pocketbook three times, and every time young Skillings picked it up for her she blushed as red as her hair. Pretty girl! She was afraid of me, I remember. Wouldn't look at me at all. Thought I'd bite her head off I guess. Come to think of it I lost some sleep over those eyes for several days. If I were like Willis and hadn't the sense to keep my head I might be married to them by this time."

"I'll just open it to make sure it belongs to her." But the first thing he pulled out was a newspaper clipping, wet and discolored, but nevertheless perfectly decipherable. In the center was his own photograph! On the margin was written in ink, "The peachiest thing you ever saw. Only about thirty. Dream of him every night. Sorry when the case is over."

Shades of Isaac Walton! The fish were forgotten.

He gathered up his tackle and poles, picked up his oars and rowed down river to the landing and thence went afoot across fields to his farmhouse.

"Mr. Elder, I found a pocketbook to-day with a Miss Elleen Porter's card in it. You don't happen to know her do you?"

"No, I don't believe I do. Nobody around this neighborhood by that name. Must be—oh, I know; she's likely one of those city girls who visited the Kramers. They have a summer home here on the hill, but they're away now."

"All right," answered the judge, casually. "I'll hunt up her address in the city when I go home and send it to her. By the way, Mrs. Elder, I've had some important mail today. I must go home for a while at least."

The city was hot, dusty and noisy, unbearable after the cool, fragrant quiet of the country. The judge did not go home. He left his bags at a hotel and took a taxi for Howard avenue, the address on Miss Porter's card. But the house was deserted. Then he called up the editor of a society paper and found that the Porters had gone to Pinehaven in the mountains. "That's where Willis is," thought the judge. "Must be some place."

So he took the first train to Pinehaven and arrived at the hotel at nine. By ten he was shaved, bathed and dressed for the dance downstairs.

Willis found him at once. "You old dog! Got tired of sitting in a lonely old boat all day, didn't you? I told Molly I'd get you yet. This is a corking place. Wait till you see the golf course—and the girls!"

The judge stood it as long as he could, then he hunted up the girl. When he saw her his heart gave a great jump and he cursed himself for a tardy fool. Perhaps he was too late. Those eyes! And that hair!

There was a moon, so they cut the dance and went out. The mountains with the sharp outline of the pines against the sky were wonderful.

"It doesn't seem as if I had been fishing on a lonely river two hundred miles away from here at noon today."

"How interesting! Did you catch anything?"

"Yes, this!" He gave her the purse, still damp and flabby.

"Why, it's mine! I dropped it out of a boat over a month ago. There really isn't much of value in it. Only a—"

She stopped suddenly.

"Only a—" he suggested.

"Nothing."

"Yes there is. My picture is in it, and you said you dreamed about me. That's why I'm here. I've been dreaming of you, too. Do—do you still dream—or is there someone else, now?"

She shook her head slowly. "No, no one else," she answered faintly.

And after they had fixed it all up, regardless of the gaze of the moon, the judge remarked suddenly: "Wouldn't it have been horrible if I hadn't landed that purse! And dearest, will you wait here just a minute? I'll be right back. I've an apology to make to Willis."

Australia's Gold Days.

Edward Hargraves was so impressed with the similarity between the gold bearing rock of California and the rocks along the Macquarie that he hurried back to Australia and had the satisfaction of startling the peaceful colonies by the discovery of gold in New South Wales in February, 1852, observes the National Geographic Magazine. Reports of panning $100 to $200 per day and of finding nuggets worth thousands of dollars each upset even the most sober minded. Even government officers and policemen deserted, and order was kept and offices manned by soldiers brought from Tasmania and from England. The workings at Ballarat and Bendigo justified the excitement. For the first ten years, 1852-1861, the output was valued at $486,000,000. From the Victoria field have come 412 gold nuggets, each weighing over 100 ounces, 52 over 500 ounces and 12 over 1,000 ounces. The weight of the "Welcome" was 2,217 ounces and of the "Welcome Stranger," found an inch below the surface, 2,520 ounces, worth $50,000.

WAR FACTS.

The United States is the eleventh nation to enter the fight against Germany.

We are the fifteenth nation in the war.

America entered the fight on the last day of the 154th week of the war. All of our wars have been declared in April, except the war of 1812, which started in June.

It is 19 years this month since we declared war upon Spain.

This is the first war in which America and England will fight on the same side.

War followed 64 days after Germany's note breaking her pledges to the United States.

The so-called eight "great powers," are now all at war.

This will be our first war against a combination of countries.

The first, third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh strongest navies are ranged against Germany. The German navy stands second, and the Austrian eighth.

The United States brings in 112,000,000 people against the central empires.

This is the 7th war of the United States.

We have averaged one war in every twenty and two-sevenths' years.

Our War Resources.

To summarize the items of our preparedness, they may be stated as follows:

We have 113,000,000 people.

Our stock of gold is as large as the combined gold reserve of France, Russia and the United Kingdom.

Our pig iron production is greater than that of all the rest of the world combined.

Our copper output is twice that of the rest of the world.

Our navy ranks third among the navies of the world, with 151 fighting ships and a tonnage of 1,097,000.

Our merchant marine has a gross tonnage of 8,470,000.

We have only 50,000 regular and 100,000 partially trained militia troops but we have 21,000,000 available men between 18 and 45 and 4,778,000 are eligible for service.

We will soon have $2,700,000 worth of anti-aircraft guns.

Joking Didn't Pay.

A young man named Helm, a son of Mrs. Jas. P. Helm, of Louisville, was in Germany in August 1914 when the war began, studying medicine. His mother heard from him two months later saying that he was in good health, and a little later she wrote him a post card saying, among other things, "Don't forget, you must not come home until you have killed the Kaiser." She has never heard from him since. The American Ambassador tried in vain to learn what had become of the young man. The family fortune, so the story goes, has been exhausted in prosecuting the search and the mother has been driven to the verge of madness, deeming herself directly responsible for the probable execution of her son.

His Garden Paid.

Over seven thousand dollars in gold was the treasure John Rugowski, a truck tenant, found hidden two feet under ground while working in his garden near Manitowoc, Wis.

Rugowski struck an old iron kettle with a shovel, and digging it up, carelessly cast it aside, when he spied the glittering money.

Her Gentle Heart

By
GENEVIEVE ULMAR

(Copyright, 1917, by W. G. Chapman.)

Weary Sikes poked his head past the half-open door of the closet cautiously, timorously, with some anxiety. His questioning eye fell upon Nellie Wayne. She smiled reassuringly.

"You can come out," she announced. "They searched the barn and have gone on."

"Bless you!" spoke the frowsy, thin-faced, limping hobo. "Miss, you deserve what I read on your gate post." "Read on the gate post?" repeated Nellie vaguely. "I am afraid I don't understand you."

"Why, you know there's an order out to arrest all the tramps that come to the town. They got after me, miss," and Weary Sikes looked actually pathetic. "I managed to distance them, but it nigh did me out. You see, I am sick, and am just out of the hospital and I couldn't do road work, and they would give me thirty days in the calaboose, and I've got to get home before I die, which the doctors say will be soon."

"You poor man!" said Nellie, her gentle eyes dewy and sympathetic.

"You need not worry about the constables. Father will be home soon and I will see that he gets you safely away from town. You must be tired and hungry. Sit down in that easy chair and rest, and I will get you a nice lunch. Oh! but about the reading on the gate post?"

"Hobo signs, miss," replied Weary, but Nellie still looked perplexed.

"You see," he went on, "as I was scurrying along, looking for a place to hide, I saw on the bottom of the gate-post in red chalk three marks. One is an X, another an O and the third an I."

"And who made them?" asked Nellie.

"Oh, any old tramp that you'd beeh kind to, just as you are to me," answered Weary gratefully. "He marked down the record, so that any brother hobo coming past would know that a real angel lived in this here home."

Nellie blushed at the compliment, but was pleased. With a vast sigh of it seems as if your kindness has melted all the badness of my poor old weary heart."

And Nellie, sweet pitying angel that she was, stood waving her hand to the poor old derelict till the wagon was out of sight.

It was a month later and Nellie was leaving the house to make a farewell visit to a neighbor. Her face was all smiles, filled with a glowing soul of happiness. All the arrangements had been made to leave the town. The horse and wagon had been sold, a purchaser found for the lease of the house and its furniture. In her pocketbook lying on the table was $400.

How carefully had the little sum been saved! Dime by dime, it had been accumulated—the means to take them to the hard-working, ambitious Warren Leighton in the West. Just about to put on her hat, Nellie drew back with a start and a thrill.

Two men had crowded through the open rear doorway. Before Nellie could run or cry out, one had sprung forward and pressed a handkerchief over her lips, tied it into a gag and forced her back into a chair.

"Tie her till we've looked over the place," he growled, and Nellie found herself helpless and beyond the power of an outcry.

"Look here, Bill," spoke the other man, discovering Nellie's purse on the table and holding it open. "Hundreds, pal; a rich haul!" Then he placed it on the table again, chuckling. "Must be rich, these folks," he went on. "Come, we'll investigate for more loot upstairs."

Nellie could not free herself. She sat mute, terrified. Her heart felt like lead as she reflected that all her hopes of the "Golden West" were shattered by these cruel, lawless thieves.

At just that moment a man slouched down the street. He was a prototype of Weary Sikes in manner and appearance. He eyed each home, particularly the one where Nellie lived. Then his glance fell to the gate post. He stooped down and scanned closely the faded red chalk symbols that Weary Sikes had once noted.

"It's the place—girl named Nellie, last name Wayne," muttered the tramp. "Hope I get a good meal for doing this errand for Weary Sikes."

He went to the rear door; it stood open. He peered into the room beyond, his eyes goggled. He started to where Nellie sat. Her eyes attracted him pleadingly. He heard gruff voices upstairs, he comprehended that something was wrong.

"What is it?" he whispered to Nellie, as he released her and removed the gag.

She told him quickly, she seized the precious money. She bade him run with her from the house.

"I don't understand, but I reckon you know what you are about," spoke the tramp.

Breathless, Nellie arrived at a neighbor's, told her story and two men were called, who hurried to capture the robbers.

"Seems as if I came just in time," said the tramp. "You're Miss Nellie Wayne; I know now. I promised an old friend in the city, now dead, to bring you a word, and this," and the speaker produced a little brown paper parcel.

Nellie opened it. Inside was an old-fashioned brooch set in gold.

"Weary Sikes," further explained the tramp. "He reached his mother just before she died. He told her about you. She sent you the brooch, with her blessing; and poor Weary died a week later."

"A blessing, indeed!" murmured Nellie, in tears, "for it brought you to my rescue, just in time."

Jena a Town of Contrasts.

Jena is a town of comfortable contrasts. Intellectually progressive, she is physically most conservative. The leaders of thought fling the most advanced ideas in social philosophy back and forth over their dinner tables, but those tables are laden with large meals cooked after the exact fashion that they have been cooked in German Bohemia for the last 200 years. The good professor will follow any intellectual concept that convinces his profoundly logical mind, but he will stick to his grandfather's style of pie in the face of all opposition and indigestion. Some might trace an interesting and instructive relationship between German pie and German pessimism.

The contrast between old manner and new thought runs all through Jena. Here is one of the most famous of European universities; here are philosophers and metaphysicians of the most daring and radical type, and all about them is an old picturesque city whose comfortable burgher class is quite untouched by all the intellectual fireworks that flash from the university grounds.

How Parrots Kiss.

Parrots, it is declared, are the most insatiable of kissers, a distinction once supposed to belong to the turtle dove.

They can kiss a thousand times an hour, and they can keep it up—as observations have revealed—for six hours. Prof. H. G. Walters of Langhorne, Pa., made this discovery by actual count while spying on the love-making of a pair of parrots recently.

The professor discovered that a love-note warble accompanies each separate kiss. The singing and kissing was all done on the rainiest, darkest, most blustery and gloomy day of the month. The seance began before 8 a. m., and the notes rivaled those of a goldfinch in brilliancy.

The species of parrot thus reported upon is from Australia, and is of very brilliant and gorgeous plumage.

THE CRISIS

To be Shown at the Princess Monday and Tuesday.

Typical Southern scenes of sixty years ago add interest in "The Crisis," the Selig super-photoplay that is being presented in the Southern States by the Big Feature Rights Corporation, of Louisville, Ky. It has been conceded that "The Crisis" is the picture of the hour. It is the masterpiece of the Selig, and is founded on America's greatest American story written by Winston Churchill.

The North and the South join in applauding the picture. It deals with that period just before, during and following the war between the states. It does not suggest offense to either locality. It's heroine is a daughter of Dixie, it's heroes, not men of the battlefield, but men of the old North and the old South. It's admirers are all of the people of both North and South of today.

Judge Silas Whipple and Col. Comyn Carvel, old friends in St. Louis, differ in politics, just as old friends do today. The Colonel's daughter is the pet of the old bachelor Judge. The Judge believes in Lincoln's policies and the Colonel believes otherwise. They argue the question whenever they meet, either in the office of the Judge or in the wholesale dry goods store of the Colonel, or at the Colonel's home. The daughter is always the peace-maker, until the election of Lincoln, and then comes the parting of the ways. And things happen and crowd and create an intense interest in heart, brain and being. This is just a part of the story that makes Winston Churchill's "The Crisis," the picture of the hour.

SEA RAIDER'S WORK TERRIBLE

Horses' Frantic Efforts To Be Saved Told By Captain.

Copenhagen, April 18.—What happens when a German sea raider is scouring the Atlantic, sinking merchant vessels, is graphically portrayed in the story of the destruction of shipping by the German commerce-destroyer Puyme, as related to a Reuter correspondent by Capt. A. Anderson, of the Norwegian steamer Hallburg, which was sunk by the raider while on her way from New York to a French port.

It was the Puyme, according to Capt. Anderson, which sank the British steamers Voltaire, Georgic and Mount Temple and accumulated her prisoners on board the Yarrowdale, on which vessel they were taken to Germany. Among them were many Americans, since released.

Pathetic scenes attended the sinking of the Mount Temple and the Georgic, both of which carried hundreds of horses, Capt. Anderson said. "The Mount Temple," the Captain said, "had on board 750 horses and a number of dogs. When she was sunk it was painful to see and hear many hundreds of horses and dogs struggling and swimming about, a confused mass in the foaming sea.

HUNDREDS OF HORSES KILLED.

"Another appalling sacrifice of animal life took place with the sinking of the Georgic, which carried as part of her cargo 1,200 horses. The horses were maddened by the explosion of the torpedo which heeled the Georgic over, wrenched themselves loose and, uttering terrifying sounds, plunged into the sea. Some of them reached the Puyme and beat with their forefeet on the vessel's side in a frantic attempt to climb to safety. At last the crew was ordered to shoot the horses with their revolvers. This shooting continued for half an hour."

K. E. A. MEETING

To Be Held in Louisville Last Week in April.

The annual meeting of the Kentucky Educational Association will be held in Louisville from the night of the 25th, to Saturday, 29th. What promises to be the best program ever offered at one of these meetings has been prepared and all reports indicate the largest attendance in the history of the K. E. A. All of the large cities in Eastern Kentucky as well as the rural schools will be dismissed and the teachers from counties and cities will go in bodies. There will be two or three special trains from Western Kentucky. The Christian county delegation will have the privilege of going over the L. & N., leaving here at 7 p. m. and arriving in Louisville about 1 o'clock, or leaving here over the I. C. at noon same day and arriving in Louisville about 5 o'clock.

County Supt. Foster and Supt. Marion would like to have an expression as to which train the teachers prefer. All teachers, trustees and others who expect to attend the K. E. A. should enroll with Supt. Marion or Supt. Foster. This would avoid the rush at Louisville. The enrollment fee is $1.00.

Hopkinsville and Christian county should send a large delegation to this state meeting.

PLANS MADE FOR H. S. CLASS DAY

Tuesday afternoon a meeting of the Senior class of the Hopkinsville High School was held to make plans for the annual class day exercises, which form one of the most attractive features of the graduating ceremonies.

Mr. Robt. Brown was elected class poet, and it is his duty to furnish appropriate verses for the High School Annual, as well as for the closing exercises. Mr. Karl Hisgen was elected class grumbler, a position which everyone in the class feels will be filled in some unique manner, for Mr. Hisgen is full of rare and original ideas. To Miss Margaret Rives fell the honor of being class historian, and to Miss Adele Taylor was given the task of prophesying the future of her classmates. Each year the prophesy is a special feature of the class day exercises, and many amusing and interesting situations are predicted by the class prophet. Miss Mary J. Wallace was elected class gifforian. It falls to her lot to present to each member of her class some token tending to remind them in the future of their high school days.

After the election, the matter of a class banquet, just before commencement, was brought up, but no definite plans were made.
